After selecting the phrase from the list of suggestions, a search is run as normal. This functionality is similar to "autocomplete" features found on other popular internet search engines.

This functionality applies to both English and French search terms.

To see suggestions on What's Market content, make sure you are searching for the name of a company or deal from the What's Market tab.

The screenshot shows the Thomson Reuters Practical Law search interface with the "What's Market" tab selected. The search bar contains the text "rogers" and has a dropdown menu open with suggestions: "rogers communications", "rogers media", and "rogers sugar". The search results are displayed under the heading "What's Market". The "Deal Summaries" section is active, showing results for "Capital Markets & Securities" (Initial Public Offerings) and "Corporate and M&A" (Public Merger Agreements, Private Acquisition Agreements). The "Finance" section shows results for "Credit Agreements: Detailed Analysis of Selected Deals" and "Credit Agreements: Comprehensive Deal Database". On the right, there are sections for "What's Market Scope" (View Now) and "What is What's Market?" (Watch the Video Tour).

Resource Suggestions

Begin your search using the Global Search Box on Practical Law Canada.

Suggested resources appear below the Global Search Box, under the Suggested Search Terms, as you begin typing in your search.

You can then select a document from the list of suggested resources by selecting the phrase. This provides quicker access to documents, when you are searching for a document by name.

The more search terms you enter, the more refined a suggestion becomes. If you know the exact name of the document you are looking for, it will quickly appear as you enter the first few terms.

Entering terms which do not appear in the title of a document will change the resource suggestions. If too many terms are included which do not appear in the document title, the resource will no longer be suggested.

Figure 8: Several terms have been entered, narrowing the results of the suggested resources to just one document.

Suggested Resources will include Practice Notes, Practice Note Overviews, Standard Documents, Standard Clauses, Checklists, Toolkits, Provincial Q&As, and Legal Updates, as well as French Language documents. Glossary Terms and What's Market Deal Summaries are not included in Resources Suggestions. The Resource Suggestions are not otherwise Practice Area specific, and are listed by relevance to the search terms, rather than Practice Area or document type.

Select the "view more" button to view even more Suggested Resources. Up to 20 Practical Law Canada Resources will be suggested.
