Campion &amp; Dimmer, Professional Liability in Canada	Practice and Professional Conduct	30846996	Chapter 9 / 9.1a: COVID-19 and Professional Responsibility Real Estate Professionals – Real Estate Brokers and Salespersons – In response to the COVID-19 pandemic, the various provincial and territorial organizations that govern the real estate profession in each jurisdiction have issued notices on best practices for its membership. This is particularly important from a health and safety standpoint, because real estate-related services remain an essential service throughout Canada and are not subject to government-mandated cessation of business. Civil Liability for Accountants and Auditors – Introduction – COVID-19 and Professional Responsibility – As one example, Certified Professional Accountants Ontario (CPA Ontario) has provided guidance to its membership on various aspects of adjusted accountancy practice, including remote-work models that address client privacy concerns. This also includes guidance around limiting direct physical interaction with clients, by using electronic means for communicating and conducting business. Although CPA Ontario continues with its registration, compliance, and regulatory activities in its ongoing role related to member oversight and public protection, in-person adjudicative tribunals have been suspended. It has extended various filing deadlines to which members are subject. As it pertains to students seeking to qualify for entrance into the accounting profession through the CPA Certification Program, all scheduled in-person examinations have been cancelled for the short term.	Jun-20
