After 15 annual editions of this book under the title Conduct of a Lien Action, this 16th edition is retitled Conduct of Lien, Trust and Adjudication Proceedings, to reflect the modernization and rationalization of our provincial construction industry credit legislation in 2018. As readers are no doubt aware, after an extensive period of consultation with stakeholders, Bruce Reynolds and Sharon Vogel submitted their expert review entitled "Striking the Balance" to the Ministry of the Attorney General and the Ministry of Economic Development, Employment and Infrastructure on April 30, 2016. The recommended reforms were significant, touching all aspects of lien and trust practice and procedure. The Review's mandate was threefold: modernization of the Act, promptness of payment, and the effectiveness of dispute resolution in the construction industry. These changes are discussed in detail throughout the book.

Today's construction law practice calls for a reference that delivers focused, practical information. As readers are no doubt aware, after an extensive period of consultation with stakeholders, Bruce Reynolds and Sharon Vogel submitted their expert review entitled "Striking the Balance" to the Ministry of the Attorney General and the Ministry of Economic Development, Employment and Infrastructure on April 30, 2016. The recommended reforms were significant, touching all aspects of lien and trust practice and procedure. The new Construction Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. C.30, received Royal Assent on December 12, 2017 with full support of all parties. The Construction Act modernization provisions came into force on July 1, 2018, with the prompt payment and adjudication amendments to follow on October 1, 2019.

The new Construction Act features three main priorities: modernization of the Act, promptness of payment, and the effectiveness of dispute resolution in the construction industry. These changes are reflected and discussed in detail throughout the 2019 edition.

L'intérêt supérieur de l'enfant : perspectives juridiques et religieuses / The Best Interests of the Child: Legal and religious Perspectives

Couverture souple 03/19

La réflexion sur les diverses conceptions de l'intérêt supérieur de l'enfant, tant dans ses représentations religieuses que juridiques, est au centre de cet ouvrage. Juifs, chrétiens, musulmans, anabaptistes, hindous, membres de nouveaux mouvements religieux ou de groupes sectaires, tous s'entendent pour affirmer que l'enfant a une place prépondérante au sein de leur communauté. Certains affirmeront même, en s'accordant avec l'État laïque, que le respect de son intérêt est primordial. Toutefois, nos analyses démontrent que les manifestations et les conceptions de cet intérêt sont plurielles et peuvent se trouver en conflit. Pour éclairer cette question, des acteurs religieux – dont un rabbin et un évêque catholique – et des chercheurs de diverses disciplines – juristes, sociologues, criminologues, psychologues, théologiens, travailleurs sociaux et spécialistes des sciences religieuses – se sont penchés de façon particulière sur la question de l'enfant, de ses droits, de sa protection et de son intérêt, et ce, en lien avec la religion. Dans nos sociétés sécularisées, des lieux de rencontre favorisant le dialogue entre les acteurs religieux et séculiers sont rares et c'est ce que nous avons voulu amorcer par cet ouvrage collectif qui témoigne d'une collaboration tout à fait novatrice.

Le Guide de l'impôt des sociétés, Édition 2019 est l'outil de préparation de déclarations de revenus des sociétés le plus détaillé sur le marché et se veut le seul guide qui traite de la préparation de la provision pour impôt des sociétés aux fins comptables ainsi que de la préparation des déclarations de revenus des sociétés qui y sont associées, de façon intégrée. Le contenu approfondi du chapitre 15 répondra à la plupart des questions sur la façon de remplir la déclaration de revenus des sociétés (déclaration T2), la déclaration de revenus des sociétés du Québec (déclaration CO-17) et la déclaration de revenus des sociétés de l'Alberta (déclaration AT1), et à faire en sorte que la provision pour impôt soit préparée conformément aux normes comptables du FASB. Les fiscalistes peuvent également se fier au Guide pour répondre aux questions liées à l'impôt des sociétés soulevées pendant l'année puisque les sujets couverts dans le Guide vont bien au-delà de la préparation des déclarations de revenus. Le Guide est présenté de manière conviviale et intuitive afin de refléter les processus de préparation des déclarations de revenus et des provisions pour impôt des sociétés. Des boîtes de texte et des aide-mémoire sont utilisés pour mettre de l'avant les concepts, les conseils et les pièges clés. Vous y trouverez des références détaillées aux dispositions législatives, à la jurisprudence, aux annexes de la déclaration de revenus des sociétés, aux pages et aux numéros de lignes, aux publications de l'Agence du revenu du Canada (ARC), de Revenu Québec, de l'Alberta Tax and Revenue Administration (ATRA), aux normes comptables de l'IFRS, de l'ICCA et du FASB et à d'autres sources pertinentes. Le guide de préparation des déclarations de revenus des sociétés le plus détaillé sur le marché est maintenant offert sur Taxnet Pro, le service de recherche en ligne en matière de fiscalité le plus complet au Canada.
